Vice President Delivers Commencement Address and Receives Honorary Degree.

TALK TO GRADUATES OF MAINE UNIVERSITY

Discusses the Relation of Capital and Labor and Warns Against "Usurious Profits."

ORONO, Maine, June 10 .- Vice President Marshall addressed a class of 120 members at the commencement exercises of the University of Maine today, and in turn received the honorary degree of doc tor of laws at the hands of President Robert J. Aley. The same degree was conferred upon Henry C. Morrison, superintendent of public instruction of New

The Vice President's topic was "Intellectual Bravery." He said, in part: "Slight knowledge will not enable the young man to assume the management of life's affairs. In the irrepressible conassume that either property or labor is peon class in America or an oligarchy of vince him that it will be better for the republic to be controlled by neither of these classes.

"In 1850 we had a republic where labor was satisfied, where respect for religion and reverence for law and order and a sincere attachment to the Constitution were strong. In that year the proportion of the annual wealth created in the country by the joint efforts of labor and capital was one-fourth to labor and

Change in the Proportion.

"Sixty years later the proportion had to less than one-fifth to labor and more than four-fifths to capital. This disproportion, to my mind, has much to do with our present discontent.

usurious profit has taken its place. When our statutes regulating the rates of in-terest were enacted the laboring man, terest were enacted the laboring man, generally speaking, was a skilled laborer. He could produce a completed article. The advent of machinery took from him his tools and put them in the hands of capital. Money no longer is borrowed by laborers to enable them to carry on their trades, but money is crafty, and instead of loaning itself to the laboring man it is now buying the laboring man's machinery, constantly enhancing its own profit thereby and constantly decreasing the L.boring man's share of our produced wealth.

"The young man in assuming leader-ship must create a public opinion and de-velop a moral sentiment against usurious profit as against usurious interest. Evi-dence of a disposition on the part of corporate wealth to accept this view is not lacking. I dare the prediction that the railroads of the country would wel-come a permanent 5 per cent or 6 per cent accumulative profit in exchange for their greater profit and the doubt, risk and abuse which come with it.

State's Duties Discussed.

"The doctrine of state's rights is now seldom heralded save in opposition to needed reforms. I must subscribe to the doctrine, but I realize that subjects which formerly were purely of state cognizance have become of common interes between the states and that the doctrine of state's rights must be supplemented by the doctrine of state's duties.

by the doctrine of state's duties.

"To control our corporations, it becomes a state's duty to place in office vigorous and honest officials who will hale offenders into court and vindicate the honor of their state laws instead of elevating into office men who will quietly sit by and wait for the general government to devise some plan to prevent the evil and to punish the wrongdoer. To conserve our natural resources it becomes a state's punish the wrongdoer. To conserve our natural resources, it becomes a state's duty to adopt a system for the wise and economic use of the resources and the prevention of private control by greedy prevention of private control by greedy speculators.

"If state's rights are to be preserved, the young men of tomorrow must take up this cry of state's duties, otherwise our pleasing vision of Uncle Sam as a patriarchal gentleman with a beneficent smile on his face toward American manhood striving for success will change to that of a quack doctor placarded, 'When others fail, consult me.'

Americans Not Dishonest.

"We Americans are not dishonest neither at heart nor intellectually, but I am fearful that many of us are intellectual cowards. When 'getting on' involves us with our consciences and with the laws of the land, we do not fight the battle out with ourselves. We throw our-battle out with ourselves. We throw ourselves into the arms of the law and demand absolution from sin and protection from punishment. The law, of course, has defined neither fraud nor dishonesty with that degree of certainty which places our proposed conduct within its terms. "The old order of education has changed. It furnished a philosophy and taught man that happiness was not in his material surroundings, in position or power, but in his own purposes and conduct. The humanities have been forgotten in the rush for the successes. ten in the rush for the successes

Intellectual Courage Needed.

"Our institutions of higher learning may not be expected to furnish a philosophic view of life, but they can be expected to instill into the minds of young men intellectual courage. I am visionary enough to believe that intellectual courage combined with honesty will solve whatever social and economic problem may arise. May this institution send no man into the world to be a leader in thought who is too cowardly to fight error and too timid to embrace truth."

SUGGESTION OF PLAN TO PENSION MOTHERS

William M. Matthews Discusses System for Raising the Necessary Funds.

Methods for Improving Condition of Poor-Public Funds and Private Contributions Contrasted.

Admitting general public interest and belief in the advisability of pensioning providing funds adequate to keep the viding these funds in the Survey, official best take care of these cases he says: "Country-wide agitation and the pas sage of laws by many states has shown the prevalent public interest in mothers' the prevalent public interest in mothers pensions. No one questions the great desirability of providing funds adequate to keep dependent mothers and children together who would otherwise be separated solely by poverty. Instead of placing children in institutions and finding a job for the mother, every one now agrees that it is much wiser to pay the cost of the family support, so that a good mother may bring up her children.

Methods Considered.

"The question which the public has to decide is whether such mothers shall be pensioned through private relief organigations or by the state or city or county finding out carefully how much is needed for proper shelter, food and clothing and for proper shelter, food and clothing and then of seeing to it that this amount is provided. Any haphazard raising of money and trying to make the amount secured go round means usually heartbreaking family struggles to get along on less than a decent standard of living. If pensions are to be given to expendent mothers with children they should not be scrimped and uncertain, but adequate and regular.

"Light upon this problem is thrown by "Light upon this problem is thrown by a study, just completed by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, into its inquiry among 474 widows with children. The association gives pensions to forty-three of these and seeks to determine how many of the remainder should be pensioned. On the basis of the study the association finds that an adequate pension system would require $92.754 per year in addition to the $71,000 now being given for that purpose. Until this amount is supplied to these families they must of necessity deterioriate by they must of necessity deterioriate by reason of insufficiency of food, lack of lothing and improper and unfit housing

Gleaned From Records. "In records ten years old one may read of instances where regular weekly allowances were being made to mothers to the end that they and their children might remain together and that they might not feel the necessity of working beyond their strength for the maintenance of their homes. Yet it was not until 1912 that the association entered upon this pension policy on any large scale or attempted to take the full place of the death removed father.

"What are the results that are showing in these families where that has been the working program? In the answer are expressed the careful opinions, impressions and conclusions of those who have been dealing at first hand with them-visitors who, going in and out of their homes daily, have come to know intimately every member of the family: who, by an established companionship and friendship, have won their way into the lives of their people; nurses, who have unceasingly toiled to bring back health and hope to the mothers and to give to the children disease-resisting bodies; dietitians, who have when necessary, given home instruction in buying, caring for and prescripts foods."

It then through private endeavor, yet unless such private agencies can measure up to the neadest of the situation they cannot allow theories and opinions as to the merits of one form of relief over another to prevent the adoption of a program whose honest purpose it is to put a stop to the incalculable social loss that is plainly written in the stories of the lives of a large number of women and children."

News Briefs.

Dr. C. P. Coler, for eighteen years occupant of the Bible chair at University of Michigan, has been called to the same chair at Virginia Christian struction in buying, caring for and preparing foods. Among Non-Pension Families.

"A careful study of the monthly budgets of the 431 non-pension families made by the association's dietitians for purpose of comparison with those of the forty-three pensioned families shows that the total monthly incomes of the 431 families is $18.611.36, while the amount that would be necessary for them to "A careful study of the monthly budmothers are arguing the desirability of the total monthly incomes of the 431 nother and children together who would that would be necessary for them to mother and children together who would otherwise be separated solely by poverty. The Zenana Pool.

But best of all in this embroidery of water was the square pool that lay in the midst of the zenana, for the ttom of it was carved into the image of a huge and many-petaled lotus flower, all of one block of white marble without all of one block of white marble without flaw or stain, and the petals seemed astir when the clear crystal passed flowing over them. And at each corner of the lotus, completing the square, were triangular panels of delicate water flowers, and through the water the carnelian and the agate and the jasper of which they were fashioned shone strangely with vivid gleams. All round the pool of the lotus used to sit the flowers of Shah Jehan's garden of girls, and there is no pool on earth that has reflected the image of such beauty. Often did the Peari-Lily, the chief flower and favorite of the harem, sit there with unsandaled feet, walting for the summons of her lord; and sometimes a cloud would pass over the image of her face reflected there when she considered that soon her loveliness would pass, and her beauty be marred by the wrinkles of the shriveling years, and desire would fail, and long after her lips had crumbled into dust, and her soft limbs had been laid underground for the worm and the red ant to batten upon, the water that flowed there would be ever renewed and know not the horror of age.

One morning at the breakfast table Mr. Francis heard one of the children finding fault with something he was told to est. "you children are getting too dainty for anything! So you think, Arthur, you should have jam and butter on the same was your age I was very glad to get dry bread to eat!"

'You have a much better time living with us, don't you, father?" queried little
